“ Cyndie & I met way back in 1961 She had just turned 11 & would turn 11 3 months to the day later. We were entering 6th grade at Olson Jr. High School. We came from different grade school, so it was all new to both of us. We clicked & became life long friends. She is 1 of 2 childhood friends I never lost touch with. We were both only children so decided to become "sisters-of-choice". She was very much the sister God forgot to give me. I've loved her most of my life & will love her forever deep in my heart until we meet again at God's side. Sweet dreams, my dearest Sister.

“ Cyndie and I first met around 1966 in the basement of a mutual friend (Ginny Coons). The basement area was in an old house at the end of Putman St. in Woodstock IL (it's still there). The basement was made of stones and resembled a cave of sorts, so we called ourselves the "Cavern Clan". The group was comprised of about 15-20 young people of late high school and college age. We did all sorts of things together such as picnics and bands (several people belonged to a rock band). We had great fun together and became very good friends.

I remember, Cyndie was going with Van Vogel at the time and they had a few rough patches and I would step in whenever possible. We dated off and on throughout my college time, but really became serious after I had joined the Navy.

The group made a trip down to White Pines Park in Oregon IL (one of our favorite hangout areas). A mutual friend known as DJ talked me in to going, even though I knew Cyndie would be there.....we had split up sometime earlier, and I was reluctant to go for that reason, but DJ was insistent so I went. I basically ignored Cyndie the whole time until the ride home when she sat next to me in the van and started talking. We hit it off pretty well and started dating again. About a year or so later, we got engaged and finally married on January 31st, 1970.

Little did I know that DJ had set the whole thing up for Cyndie, which I found out later. By that time it was too late, but I did not mind. I had always had a soft spot for Cyndie. She kind of had that effect on people and we spent 37 years together which also brought us 2 terrific daughters.

I will always remember the good times and will definitely miss her for the rest of my life.

Thank you, Cyndie, for sticking by me for so long. You are loved very much.

With love,

Ed

“ Ed

Your message about Cyndie is so sincere . Sounds like she was a really good wife, I'm sorry , this part of life hurts. I and Lisa will pray for you and all your family. And I hope you and I can maybe talk sometime. I do miss our talks:)

Take care

Darrell

“ What a beautiful story, Ed. And what a wonderful memories. As a member of the Cavern Club, I share so many of those memories. We all drifted apart after high school graduation, except for Cyndie, DeeJay and me. We stayed in touch all these years. Thank God. And I thank God for putting her in my life.

“ Thanks so much, my friends. Your thoughts and words of comfort really help....more than you know. It gives us all comfort to know that she is whole again and without pain. Can't wait to see her.
